plicated Process The United States consul in Liege describes, in a recent report, the manufacture of and trade in Damascus gun barrels, wholly handmade, in the valley of the Vesdre, in Liege province. These barrels are for sporting guns, and the industry is many years old, the workmen in the villages in the valley being almost all gun barrel makers and the trade descending from father to son.

The best barrels are a combination of the best primary substances, welded and forged by the martelage a froid The steel comes from Westprocess. phalia; the iron is manufactured at Couvin, in Belgium; the coal, which is specially suited for the work, from the Herve bighlands, in Belgium, while the motive power of the factories is obtained from the river Vesdre. The industry has increased greatly in recent years. These armes do luxe, as they are called are made by men working in pairs, each pair in its own little factory, quite independent of all others. They are paid by the piece, the wages being good, and about 2,000 men are engaged on the work in the valley. Medium quality barrels are made of coke iron and steel, while the superior quality, which are produced in the Vesdre valley, are made of chargoal iron and steel. An ingenious 'marriage' of these metals gives a composition which, when manufactured, guarantees the required solidity and re-

The improvement in these damascu barrels dates from the introduction of precussion caps in placo of the old flintlock. Formerly iron barrels alone were produced. Now, to manufacture the curled damascus, the ingot is composed of 30 sheets of iron and steel, each hav ing a thickness of four millimeters which are enveloped in a sheet iron box, placed in an oven and welded together at the lowest possible temperature. Each barrel receives 150 welding beats while being forged, and if a single one of thes is unsuccessful the barrel may be a failare, either by alteration of the damas cened work or an imperfection in the welding.

There is no official test of these armes de luxe, but they are thoroughly tested by the manufacturers before delivery The annual production of damascus barrels in the Vesdro valley is about 800, 000 pairs, of a value of about 3,500,000 francs. Of this the wages alone-for all the guns are handmade-amount to about 2,000,000 frames. The principal markets are Great Britain and the United States. About half the barrels made in the Vesdre valley are sold to manufacturers of arms in Liege to b mounted.—New York Times.

MRS, STUART'S MODELS.

She Says She Does Not Have to Live Among Them to Write of Thom. Ruth McEnery Stuart, the clever short story writer, in talking of her field from which she has drawn her characters, says: "You know Mr. Stuart owned two sugar plantations down in Ar kansas then, and my models were right around me, for of course all his 'han's felt they owned us.

'We didn't live on either of the plan tations, but in the little town near by, and I can see all those darkies now, riding in on their nucles, hitching them to the mulberry trees in our yard, sitting in rows upon our front stops, 'restin' and 'foolin roun generally.

"Some old 'annty' would surely come walking in every morning with a battered tin pail on her arm, filled with perfectly worthless berries, gathered by the wayside, not to sell, but 'ter swup fur jes' a lee'le flour, please, ma'am, an a pincher butter, honey, an a couple er lumps er sugar, please, ma'am, Mis Stuart

"Then there was an old 'ancle' who used to sit silently fishing all day long in a shallow pool, with his underlip stuck out phenomonally fur, even for a negro, who, when any one asked him, 'Say, uncle, what's that you've got in your month?' would reply laconically, Wnms,' and shut his tongue down upor his imprisoned 'bait' again.

"Do I miss such 'material' up here? Not at all. I find that in looking back upon these old friends of mine their dusky figures stand out more and more clearly against the glow of tender reminiscence beside what types we have here at our door in Gotham."-New York Correspondent.

Tough Job For Small Men. The occupation of a boiler inspecto is one in which a man cannot grow fat without losing his job, and perhaps is a funny business in that respect. Each boiler inspected is drained of its contents, and then the inspector rigs himself for a dirty job and wriggles himself into the inside of it through the man hole. This aperture cannot well be made large enough to admit a large man, hence the smallest sized fellows have the monopoly of the business. But though that fact may be funny, the business itself, getting into dirty and stifling places and wriggling like a human worm into every hole and corner to know its real condition, is anything but fun. The most scrupulous care is required in these examinations, and as everything is out of sight, the insurance company have to depend wholly upon he trustworthiness of their men. Hence these get pay that makes amends for all hey have to undergo, sufficient, indeed, to keep them from getting too big for their business!—Lewiston Journal.

BURKE BROTHERS. The old story of Prometheus is a parable, an allegory. Prometheus was on terms of intimacy with the gods. From them he stole fire, and gave it to men. For this sin he was bound to the rocks of Mount Caucasus, and vultures were set upon him. They only ate his liver. This grew again as fast as it was pecked away. Are his sufferings to be imagined? Yes, and realized. Take a modern interpretation of the parable. There is no cooking without fire. In cooking and eating the mischief lies. The stomach is overtasked, the bowels become clogged, they cannot dispose of the food that is given them. The impurities back up on the liver. Then come the vultures, The-sufferings from an outside, visible hurt, are a mere pin-scratch to the torments The old story of Prometheus is a parable RENO, NEVADA

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper ca-forts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts— rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the ficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful may be commented to the most skilled physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

VICTOR AUTOMATIC GATE OPERATOR

Patented February 25, 1896, by F. V. Burner, Elko, Nevada. (No. 555,427.)

J. J. BURNER, Box 345, Reno, Nevada, -GENERAL AGENT IN WESTERN NEVADA-

FOR the Victor Automatic Gate Operator, is selling farm rights in Western Nevada. All who are interested and wish to buy State or County rights will please set in personally or write to F. V. Burner, Proprietor of the Victor Automatic Gate Operator, Elko, Elko County, Nevada.

This gate saves time, money, trouble and accidents. Do not fail to buy a right. If you do you will regret it. Charges are lower now than they will ever

Why the Victor Automatic Gate is the Most Practical on the Market

1. It is the most simple gate ever constructed.
2. It can be made cheaper than any other.
3. It can be opened and closed from any distance desired.
4. The Victor Operator can be attached to any thing in the shape of a gate, no matter what the form or material:
5. The wire and one hinge are the only things about the Operator which cannot be made of wood.

6. Any ordinary hinge suitable for any other gate may be used on this.

7. There are two ways provided to get double purchase.

8. This purchase or leverage may be produced without springs or weights, simply by making the pivoted lever and pulley levers longer.

9. Everything about the Victor Operator can be made of metal.

J. J. Burner will put up a gate on Dan O'Conner's lot, opposite the Journal Office.

Reno Boys Victorious in All Contests Capturing Medals and Prizes

-An Immense Crowd.

The festivities heralding in the grand Fourth of July celebration at Wadsworth commenced early on the day of the 3d. Crowds of visitors began to arrive early in the day and each train that pulled into town from the east and west brought people from Winnemucca, Lovelocks and all along the line, also from Reno, Truckee, Verdi, Carson and Virginia. During the day of the 3d the Nevada Star baseball club of Virginia, the Renos and the Indian boys from the Pyramid Reservation contested for the Examiner prize, an account of which was pubished in Saturday's Journal.

Wadsworth was dressed in boliday. attire, many of the decorations being elaborate and expensive, while bunting and flags were displayed on every side, even to the Indian wickiups near the town- Evergreens were in profusion and the pretty little gardens were trimmed up and made to look their best. The good people of the live little town tion. vied with each other in trying to entertain and accommodate all comers, and every effort was made by the committee in charge as well as the citizens gener-Have you catarrab. THEIR HONEYMOON.

CAME PRETTY NEAR STARVING DUR-ING ITS FIRST WEEK.

Starving amid plenty is a hard fate, yet such was the case of a diffident bridal couple that staid for a week at the Hotel Netherland recently. They came up from the south, and the period of reconstruction did not seem to have left a mark upon their open and genial characters. He was rawboned and athletic, and she was one of those typical southern girls who speak in the languorous dialect of Dixie Land when she does speak, but carries on conversation mainly by the use of her eyes. The conple were well supplied with money and manifested a desire to have a good time, but showed a woeful lack of knowledge of the details of a great city. To the manager of the house the young bridegroom confided the information that his family had once been wealthy, but, like many others in the south, had been drained by the wa The girl also came of an old plantation family that had been left penniless by the war, and all either could boast of was a long line of fine ancestry, health and good looks. By dint of hard work and extreme economy the bridegroom had saved a few hundred dollars, and he intended to have a honeymoon that would be worthy of remembrance.

The couple came to the hotel about noon and passed most of the afternoon in looking over the house and admiring the furnishings. When it began to grow dark, the young husband seemed to get uneasy. He wandered around the corridors of the hotel and seemed to be at a loss for something. Finally his feelings mastered him, and he approached the clerk and asked: "Ah, say, can you tell me when the supper bell rings? Am getting sort o' hungry."

The clerk was amused, but he ex- I'I IONI plained to the southerner the mysteries of living upon the European plan. When the bridegroom, learned that the $4 a day he was paying for his room did not include meals for himself and his wife, he whistled softly and remarked: "You all must mak' a heap of money cha'ging like that fo' rooms. Well, we cus are going to have a good time, and I sup'ose we all might as well go in and get something or other to cat.'

Ho walked off and went up to his room to get his wife. He manifested a peculiar liking for the elevator and insisted on riding in it at every occasion. He found his wife as hungry as himself, and under the tow of a bellboy made his way to the dining room. Previous to entering this room his honeymoon had been a dream of joy, without a cloud to hide the sunshine. When he seated himself at the table the first "oft in the lute" ame. A white aproised, obsequious waiter laid a carte de jour in front of the southern visitors and then hurried off to get glasses, plates and so on. A consultation at once took place. The card was printed in French, and after studying it from every side and reading is backward and forward the hasband gave it up and passed it over ruefully to his wife. She looked in hopeless bewilderment at the card, and it was evident that she was at sea also, so far as French was concerned. They gazed hopelessly into each other's eyes and then at the card, and then back into each other's eyes again. He was game to the last, and suddenly a thought struck him. He called the waiter to him and said softly, 'Waitah, is this all you uns have for

The waiter replied that everything that had been prepared for the meal was on the card. The husband sighed and the wife looked glum. Then the young fellow said quietly: "Well, I guess we all don't want any of what you uns have got fixed. We ams will get something or other to eat later." Then he arose and went up to his room, his wife following obediently. For two days the young couple haunted the house. They did not seem to think that there was any more of New York than that which lay immediately within the range of vision from the hotel. They eyed the dining room longingly, but did not enter it. One day one of the maids came to the manager of the hotel and told him that the persons in the room occupied by this young couple were littering the place with cooking. The manager, who felt that something was wrong with the young fellow, called him aside and told him kindly that the management did not allow cooking in the rooms, as it interfered with the regime of the house and damaged the furniture. The young man blurted out: "Ah don't see what we all is to do, then. Ah can't get any. thing to eat in the dining room, and we uns has got to eat."

When pressed for an explanation, he explained the trouble about the bill of fare, and confided to the manager that he and his wife had finally grown so hungry that he slipped over to a corner store and got some vegetables and other entables and a frying pan. The couple had used the gas jet for a stove, and managed to get along pretty well, although he admitted that it was a rather poor makeshift. The manager explained the intricacies of a French carte de jour to him, and also gave him a broader idea of the city's resources. The young were in the city they entered the dining room with the air of persons who knew all about it, and ordered the waiter to get them something to eat. They branched out over the city also, and paid visits to various points of interest. As he was leaving the hotel, the husband grasped the manager by the hand and said feelingly: "Ah'm bliged to you, sah. A person who don't ask questions should starve, and we uns came pretty near it."—New York Tribune.
